

The medical strategy board game that models accountable care and capitated payment structures

bill of health

Bill of Health simulates capitated payments for health care in the U.S. health care system, and this payment model's positive effects on health care quality and costs as compared to a pay-per-service model. Players take on the role of providers and bid to care for patients. Players set prices low to attract patients but must still be able to afford to care for them for the duration – no matter what happens as a result of chronic illness or unforeseen circumstances.
